“Becoming an Educated Investor is hard work. The benefits – control of your life and an understanding of how the economy works, and your situation in it – make the effort worthwhile.”

James W. Coleman
Renowned Financial Authority and Author

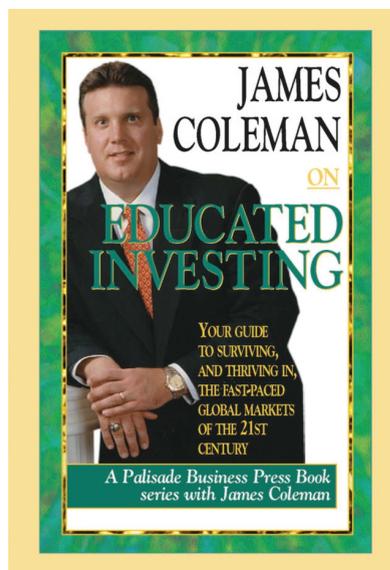

In Connecticut the multitude of investment companies, brokerage houses, banks, financial advisors and insurance agents is staggering. The average resident is bombarded with incredible amounts of information leaving us all wondering who to turn to for help on retirement income strategies and increasing rates of return while minimizing risk. There is no one simple solution to the complex issues we face in today's difficult economy. Finding someone who stands out from the masses by creating skillful and effective solutions to our evolving and complex financial decisions is a daunting task. Setting himself apart is exactly what Jim Coleman has been able to do. As an independent financial advisor, Jim has the rare opportunity to meet the needs of his clients through objective advice utilizing some of the most competitive products and services available in the entire marketplace. As a renowned financial authority, Jim specializes in developing unique financial strategies for his clients. His areas of expertise are retirement income strategies, asset management, risk avoidance and income and estate-tax minimization.

Jim successfully serves clients in many areas of the country with a concentration in Connecticut where his main office is located. His client base is made up of affluent seniors, executives, entrepreneurs and those nearing retirement. Having received both national and regional recognition from some of the nation's largest financial firms Jim has been sought out by many of his industry peers to teach his strategies and disciplines. Locally in Connecticut you maybe lucky enough to see Jim at one of his financial seminars, hear him on the radio or you may already be receiving one of his newsletters. Jim likes to say

“The value I bring to a client is truly listening to their concerns and objectives. By following my beliefs in integrity, knowledge, hard work and discipline, while putting their needs first, I can objectively help them to become Educated Investors and help them better accomplish their financial goals.”
